

Philosophy: Ethics

Utilitarianism holds that right actions maximize overall happiness. Deontology judges actions by adherence to duties regardless of consequences. Kant's Categorical Imperative: act only according to principles you would universalize. Virtue ethics focuses on character and the golden mean. Free will debate: determinism vs. libertarian free will vs. compatibilism. The trolley problem illustrates conflict between utilitarian and deontological reasoning.