

Psychology: Cognitive Biases

Cognitive biases are systematic errors in thinking. Confirmation bias favors information confirming existing beliefs. Availability heuristic judges probability by ease of recall. Anchoring over-relies on the first piece of information encountered. Dunning-Kruger effect: low-ability individuals overestimate competence. Memory is reconstructive not reproductive. Piaget's stages: sensorimotor, preoperational, concrete operational, formal operational.